

Brighton, Vicarage. Saturday night, Feb. 5. 1859

My dear Elliott

I have the pleasure to acknowledge your second more explanatory letter touching your proposed benevolence to the Asylum for the Blind with certain conditions annexed to the gift.

The conditions enhance in my estimation the value of the offering - they are wholesome conditions - and so I have told Mr Soames, whom I have had the pleasure of knowing, and whom I am to meet in Committee on Tuesday next at 12 o'clock.

I cannot refrain from adding one

My dear Elliott

I have the pleasure to acknowledge your second more explanatory letter touching your proposed benevolence to the Asylum for the Blind with certain conditions annexed to the gift.

The conditions enhance in my estimation the virtue of the offering. They are wholesome conditions and so I have told Mr Soames, whom I have had the pleasure of knowing and whom I am to meet in Committee with on Tuesday next at 12 o'clock.

I cannot refrain from adding one word of notice—grateful notice of the series of kindnesses which have during a long course of years (we think a word meaning 'shaped') all your procedure toward me.'

I am my dear Elliott

Truly yours
